2023-07-16	1500	Nature & Environment	Planet Reef	Rescuing The Turtles In Raine Island	01	1	Of the seven species of sea turtles, all are classified as vulnerable, endangered or on the edge of extinction. One of the main reasons for this is the degradation of their nesting spots. Raine Island is also the most important seabird rookery in the Great Barrier Reef - home to 20,000 breeding pairs of Frigates and Boobies. Their survival is intimately tied to that of the turtle colony, because without young turtles to feed on, seabird numbers would collapse, too.	FRANCE	English-100	2021	RPT	PG	a w	Y

2023-07-16	1730	History	The Rise Of The Nazis	First Six Months In Power, The	01	2	At the start of 1933, Hitler is the chancellor of Germany but he does not have absolute power - there is still a democratic parliament beneath him, a head of state above him and the rule of law hanging over him. Hitler sets his sights on dismantling the German state. When Hitler calls a general election to increase Nazi representation in the Reichstag, Hermann Göring sees an opportunity to impress by taking out the left-wing opposition. 2023-07-18	1420	History	French Voyages: Discovery To Australia		French Voyages Of Discovery To Australia	0		Could Australia ever have been French? The English certainly thought so. Through revolution, empire and restoration, late 18th and early 19th century France maintained an unwavering commitment to research and discovery in the Pacific region and in Australia. More interested in science than in new colonies, these early French voyages, led by commanders like Bougainville, Laprouse, D'Entrecasteaux, Baudin, Freycinet, Duperrey and Dumont d'Urville, were the first to name, describe and beautifully illustrate many Australian species. England may have colonised Australia, but for many years it was France that understood it best. This richly illustrated short documentary film brings to life our fascinating and colourful French history and reminds us of a time when scientific research involved intrepid voyages in tall ships on the high seas, battling scurvy and storms, insects and rats, and hostilities both on board and on shore. 2023-07-22	1400	Nature & Environment	Planet Reef	Resurrecting The Reef	01	2	Over the past 30 years, the world has lost nearly one-third of its coral reefs. More than one billion people depend on reefs for food and hundreds of thousands of people depend on them for their livelihoods. From the most recently developed killer robots, to shellfish farming, ultra-modern tactics are now proving their worth in the Great Barrier Reef to ensure the survival of this natural wonder that is the coral world and to make it possible to export this know-how to many of the world's reefs. 2023-07-22	1500	Nature & Environment	Planet Reef	Protecting Megamouths	01	3	Whales, manta rays, whale sharks are all eaters of animal plankton or small fish, themselves huge consumers of vegetable plankton. These marine algae produce half of the oxygen on earth and capture 40% of the carbon dioxide. But the global role of the Mastodons is hardly believable. By swallowing plankton and the small animals that feed on them, these giants capture and store carbon in their fat. When they die, they sink into the abyss where the carbon remains trapped for thousands of years. For example, one whale captures as much carbon each year as a thousand trees. These giants are real allies in regulating the climate and restoring reef productivity. The programme for identifying these new feeding areas is easily reproducible in all the areas concerned around the world.	FRANCE	English-100	2021	RPT	G			Y
