2017-12-24	1730	History	Nazi Gold Train, The	Nazi Gold Train, The		0	There's the whiff of a fantastic James Bond plot about it: in the last days of World War Two, an armoured train rumoured to be loaded with Nazi gold and stolen treasure vanishes somewhere in the Polish forest. Shortly afterwards the nearby castle Furstenstein is captured by the advancing Red Army while it is the middle of a major renovation to create a new HQ for the Nazi elite, complete with secret passages, tunnels and subterranean armament factories. Seventy years later, treasure hunters claim to have rediscovered this mysterious train hidden in one of these tunnels beneath many meters of bedrock and concrete. It seems unbelievable, and yet, could there be some truth in these incredible stories?	GERMANY	German-100	2016	RPT	PG		Y	Y

2017-12-24	1930	Archaeology	Mexico's Ancient Megacity	Premiere	Mexico's Ancient Megacity	0	Two thousand years ago, Teotihuacan was one of the largest cities in the world, a thriving metropolis not far from what is today Mexico City. But just a few hundred years later, it was completely abandoned, its former citizens long gone, leaving little trace of their culture. Despite many decades of research, not much is known about the long-lost Teotihuacan society. Who built this magnificent city with its giant pyramids? Why did its people seemingly vanish without a trace? This program follows a team of international scientists who believe they have found the answers to these questions and more. As in all total solar eclipses, the moon blocked the sun and revealed its ethereal outer atmosphere - its corona - in a wondrous celestial spectacle. While hordes of citizens flocked to the eclipse's path of totality, scientists, too, staked out spots for a very different reason: to investigate the secrets of the sun's elusive atmosphere. During the eclipse's precious seconds of darkness, they gathered new clues on how our sun works, how it can produce deadly solar storms, and why its atmosphere is so hot.
