- 7:30 pm Who Do You Think You Are? - Andrew Denton - In the premiere episode of this series return, broadcaster Andrew Denton investigates his family history. A generation ago Andrew's family anglicised their name from Ditkofsky to Denton, a decision taken to keep members safe at a time of entrenched racial intolerance. Andrew's father, author Kit Denton walked away from his Jewish ancestry when he married a catholic woman and became a proud atheist. For these reasons Andrew Denton's knowledge of his Jewish roots until now has been scant. On the trail of his ancestors, Andrew's journey takes him to London and Belarus. Andrew is excited by the prospect of meeting descendants of his Great Grandfather who fathered twelve children. He finds none - instead the horrors of the Holocaust crash down on him. - 7:30 pm Hairy Bikers' Asian Adventure - Thailand: Bangkok And The Central Plains - They say it's impossible to eat badly in Thailand and in this episode the Hairy Bikers discover why. They are in Bangkok and Thailand's central plains, where much of the familiar Thai cuisine originates. Si and Dave find out why Bangkok is the street food capital of the world, they discover the secrets of an authentic green curry under the terrifying tutelage of Auntie Daeng and they help serve up some school dinners, Thai style. Then, heading out of Bangkok, they find out how rice is grown, joining some paddy field workers to help with the planting. (From the UK) (Food Series) G CC New Episode
- 8:30 pm The Machine That Changed The World - In the early sixties, to talk about computer science meant talking about enormous calculators that were seen as pure science fiction to the vast majority. In 1963 the IBM PDP-1 occupied an entire room, cost 100.000 dollars and was in few specialised laboratories. And while the world dreams about and fears this object of the future, in that small lab with tainted black windows, four pioneers invented the P101, "the first desk top computer of the world'. This is the birth of our age. But the big US companies didn't sit idly by. In 1967, Hewlett Packard compensated Olivetti with 900.000 dollars, implicitly recognising that they had infringed the Olivetti's patent of the P101 with their model HP 9100 and the inventors received a dollar each as a symbolic gesture, for that invention that changed the world. This is the tale of the birth of our era, told through the voices of its protagonists and through an incredible archive material. - 8:30 pm Richard III: The King In The Car Park - When a skeleton was reported to be found under a Leicester council car park in September 2012, the news broke around the world. Could it be the remains, lost for 500 years, of England's most infamous king? This documentary has the full inside story of the hunt for Richard III. The discovery of the body and the battery of scientific tests to establish its identity have been carried out in complete secrecy, with no footage of them seen by anyone but the investigating team. It unveils a brand new facial reconstruction made from the skull and reveals the results of the final tests that confirm or deny the body's identity. (From the UK) (Documentary) (Rpt) PG CC
